

A westward moving projectile moves towards the axis of rotation (i.e. down and north relative to the earth).

An eastward moving projectile moves away from the axis of rotation (i.e. up and south relative to the earth).

